Another future without violence against women is possible with education, essential services across policing, justice, health, and social sectors, and sufficient financing dedicated to women's rights.

As in previous years, this year's International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women launches 16 days of activism to be concluded on the 10th of December 2020 — the day that commemorates the International Human Rights Day. Several public events are being coordinated and iconic buildings and landmarks will be 'orange'd' to recall the need for a violence-free future.

2021 Theme: Orange the World: End Violence against Women Now!
Nearly 1 in 3 women have been abused in their lifetime. In times of crises, the numbers rise, as seen during the COVID-19 pandemic and recent humanitarian crises, conflicts and climate disasters. A new report from UN Women, based on data from 13 countries since the pandemic, shows that 2 in 3 women reported that they or a woman they know experienced some form of violence and are more likely to face food insecurity. Only 1 in 10 women said that victims would go to the police for help.

While pervasive, gender-based violence is not inevitable. It can and must be prevented. Stopping this violence starts with believing survivors, adopting comprehensive and inclusive approaches that tackle the root causes, transform harmful social norms, and empower women and girls. With survivor-centred essential services across policing, justice, health, and social sectors, and sufficient financing for the women's rights agenda, we can end gender-based violence.

To raise awareness, this year's theme is "Orange the World: End Violence against Women Now!". Orange is our color to represent a brighter future free of violence against women and girls. Be part of the orange movement!

At the offices of GIDE on Wednesday 26th of October 2021, we held the second TPM of the project A Chance 4 Change: Empowerment and Restoration which is implemented within the framework of Erasmus+.

In the meeting, several representatives of the organisations participating in the strategic partnership, from UK, France, Italy, Greece, Cyprus, and Spain.

French hospitality as its best, the hosts created a delightful atmosphere in order for the meeting to be productive and efficient. The meeting elaborated on the deadlines and the great work that had been done until that time for the project intellectual outcomes as well as the remaining tasks to be completed.

During the meeting, the working timetable was formulated, action points were set and critical decisions were made regarding the project and its objectives as also information about the upcoming Conference was shared.

The meeting included a wonderful French meal and an outdoor walk to the youthful, artistic streets of Nantes.

young people remain rather concern about the impact the stereotypes and gender discrimination is having on their every day lives. While they were asking for more support in identifying and dealing with these phenomena, youth workers and teachers who were at the event pointed out that their formal training never included media education and restorative justice.

Dasia Ngundam-Bohi, a young person and our new Chance of Change Project Officer, led on the discussions, which concluded with a Call to Action.

Human Rights Day: 10 December

On the 10th December, the RJ4All International Institute celebrated the international Human Rights Day by holding an event at its Community Centre in South East London. At the event, the Chance for Change project was discussed among young people and youth workers who attended.

In particular, we had the chance to talk about the Chance for Change Competences Framework and gender-based violence within formal and informal youth settings. It was clear from the discussions that
